

Annual GMP

Updating is the key to success in life science

Get documentation of maintained GMP knowledge, insight into current GMP trends, and the opportunity to exchange experience with colleagues from life science.

About the course

In a GMP-regulated company, all relevant employees are required to complete regular GMP refresher training.

In this course, you will refresh your knowledge of GMP requirements, ensuring you understand what the requirements are and how to maintain compliance in your daily work.

By participating in this course, you will gain:

- Documentation demonstrating that you maintain your GMP knowledge.
- Clarity on the requirements for day-to-day compliance.
- Insight into current developments within GMP.

We focus on current topics such as documentation, Good Documentation Practice (GDP), deviations and Corrective and Preventive Actions (CAPA), production, cross-contamination, as well as GMP mindset and quality culture.

You will gain a strong understanding of your responsibilities in daily practice and the importance of maintaining compliance to ensure the required product quality.

We review current trends in the life science industry, providing insight into regulatory authorities' focus areas and industry experiences.

The course also provides an opportunity to exchange knowledge and experiences with colleagues from across the life science industry.

Target group

This course is for those working within GMP areas who need a course to refresh GMP requirements for production and documentation.
